TEWKESBURY TALES.

Ben Butler's Investigation of the Almshouse Rascality Continued-Testimony Yesterday.

Boston, April 12 .- Dr. Dean, formerly of the Harvard Medical school, testified at the Tewkesbury almshouse investigation to-day us to the number of bodies dissected. Gov. Butler made the remark that Mr. Brown, the opposing counsel, had lobbled the legislative committee, which he indignantly denied.

J. C. Burt testified that he had made the lowest bid to supply milk to the almshouse, but that other parties had secured the contracts. The governor introduced the testimony of former inmates, one of whom was James A. Goodwin, who corroborated the testimony as to the indiscriminate bathing by healthy and diseased patients in the same water. Good clothing which he had taken to water. Good clothing which he had taken to the almshouse had been stolen from him. He had complained to Gen. Butler of the bathing abuses and they were stopped soon after.

Harrier A. Jackson said she got very little to eat at the almahouse, and it was of poor quality. She left in consequence.
Otto H. Alden said that he had been forced to bathe with diseased inmates.
Charles B. Marsh, clerk of the almshouse, said he had delivered all the books asked for by the governor. There was no register kept of the burlilis, and he knew of no book which showed how the dead bodies were disposed of,
but had heard that such a book was kept.
No record was kept of the clothes brought by the inmates. the inmutes.

The governor asked the witness if, when a man was hired, whether his entire time be-man was hired, whether his entire time belonged to the state, and opposing counsel said that the witness was no more competent to answer that than he was to say whether or not the whole time of the gevernor belonged to the state. The witness had never sean a body go from the almshouse, but presumed they had gone, as his brother told him so.

The governor again reiterated his demand for every book which belonged to the almshouse. He objected to the opposing counsel saying what books should or should not be furnished, and he wanted every book kept by man, woman, or child. He could not say how many witnesses would be introduced; it depended on his examination of the books. Mr. Mellen protested against the gratuitous insults Mellen protested against the gratuitous insuits offered the governor by Mr. Brown, and Mr. Brown flung back the insinuation and denied its truth. Several retorts followed, and the chairman called the counsel to order. The investigation was then adjourned to Monday.

WHISKY SHIPMENTS.

Large Quantities Being Sent to the Island of Bermuda,

NEW YORK, April 12.-The steamship Flamborough, of the Bermuda line, left her pier at the foot of West Tenth street this morning, carrying 1,000 barrels of whisky from Pennsylvania and Ohio distilleries. The liquor is part of the over production that has been manufactured during the past five years, been manufactured during the past five years, and which has been lying in bondedwarehouses since 1879. The time has come when the internal revenue tax must be paid upon it, and to avoid this payment the distillers are shipping enormous quantities to foreign countries, where they will let it lie in storehouses, drawing it out as it is needed. Mr. Charles McK. Loeser, editor of the Wine and Charles Checkler, in referring to this movement. Epirit Circular, in referring to this movement this morning, said :

Epirit Circular, in referring to this movement this morning, said:

Before the year is out, over 200,000 barrels of whisky will have been exported to Bermuda and Liverpool. This result is exactly what was prophesied would occur if congress failed the extension of the Bond bill which was proposed last acasion for the relief of the distillers. The law, as it now stands, puts an internal revenue tax of ninety cents per gallon on crude whisky, which is equivalent to about $1.00 at gallon on the refined liquor. It is not required that the tax shall be paid as soon as the liquor is distilled, but it may remain in a bonded warehouse for three years before such payment is made. This law has been in force for many years, and until lately it has caused no hardship to distillers, for it is only within the past two or three years that any directly has been felt in finding a market in which to dispose of the whisky at remuerative prices, since 1877, however, there has been an enormous linerase in the number and size of distilleries in the west, and as a consequence the market, which was so free before, is now almost hopelessly giuted. Several million gallons of whisky are yeng idle in Kentucky and Ohio bonded store houses upon which the tax is due. It would be much cleaper and more convenient to send it to Canada, but the Canadian authorities refuse to altowing the construction barrels contain less than forty-live gallons, it would be necessary to make new ones to use in Canadian territory, and as this would be too expensive, the idea of sending liquor there had to be abandoned.

Mr. Outcerbridge, agent for the Bermuda line of steamshine, said that his yessels had

Mr. Outerbridge, agent for the Bermuda line of steamships, said that his vessels had carried a great deal of whisky to Bermuda during the past three months, and that most of it had been brought back again on the same ship it had gone out on. #### Between Baltimore and Philadelphia-Mortgage on Bonds to Build It.

BALTIMORE, MD., April 12,-A mortgage deed was filed for record in the office of the clerk of the superior court of Baltimore city yesterday afternoon, from the Baltimore and Ohio railway company to William F. Burns, John Gregg and F. Harrison Garrett, trustees, The deed is dated April 2, 1883, and is quite voluminous. It recites resolutions of the board of directors of the Baltimore and Ohio railway company, ordering the issue of certain bonds for the purpose of constructing a lateral road from a point on its main line near Baltimore city to a point on the northern boundary of Cecil county, Maryland, to be known as the Philadelphia branch of the Baltimere and Onio railway, which will connect with the Baltimore and Philadelphia railway, now being built through the state of Delaware by way of Wilmington, and through the state of Pennsylvania to Philadelphia. For this purpose the Baltimore and Ohio railway company has issued to Brown, Shipley & Co., of London, £2,400,000 of bonds, £2,000 bonds of £200 each—hearing date April 2, 1883, at 41 per cent. per annum. To secure the payment of these bonds the deed assigna to the trustees named for the benefit of the bondholders the Philadelphia branch of the Baltimore and Ohio railway, together with all its appartenances, privileges, franchises, docks, rolling stock, &c., now owned and hereafter to be acquired by said branch. The deed is signed by Robert Garrett, first vice president of the Baltimore and Ohio Railway company, for that corporation. The bonds run to April 1, 1933, and the principal and interest are made payable at the agency of the Baltimore and Ohio Rallway company in the

THE FIEND SCHELLER.

Evidence Closing Around Him That He Fired the Newhall House in Mil-wankee. MILWAUKEE, April 12 .- The Scheller case to-day was devoid of interest. The woman who cleaned Goetz's barber shop in the basement told what she knew of its construction and the waste material there. No witnesses have yet been produced to show Scheller's movements on the fatal night. The first ob-ject of the presecution seems to be to show that the Newhall house fire was not caused by spontaneous combustion.

William Sanderson and Thomas Dunbar testified to meeting the accused in Newbow's gambling house, close by the Newhall hotel, at 3 o'clock on the morning of the fire. Scheller took part in a game of poker, but the urtendant made him cash his chips on the ground that he was too drunk. Sanderson, Dunbar, and Scheller happened to leave at the same time. Scheller asked the others to go to his saloon and take a bottle of wine, which they refused to do. He was next seen at the fire by numerous people. The prosecution showed pretty conclusively that the elevator shaft was clean and the busement contained no material to furnish spontaneous combustion. The woman who washed in the base-ment of the barber shop until 11 o'clock the night before the fire smelt escaping gas all

JOHN WALSH ARRIVES.

The "Spancet" in New York-He Tells About His Travels and Gives His Opinion of English Justice.

NEW YORK, April 12.-John Walsh, who was recently arrested by the French authorities at the request of the British government, on suspicion of being concerned in the Phænix park murders, arrived in this city today on the steamer France from Havre.

was born in Ireland in 1833; that he left that country twenty-two years ago, and has resided in England until lately. He early took a stand in the Irish revolutionary movement, and in 1867 was arrested in Manchester for being concerned in the Fenian movement of that year, but he was eventually discharged. From that time to his departure for France that year, but he was eventually discharged. From that time to his departure for France he has steadily given his time and exertions to the organization of the Irish national movement in the north of England. He also materially assisted in organizing the land league. When the latter movement first started he was elected by the London executive in conjunction with Frank Byrne and T. Kelley to spread over England a network of Irish societies, whose aims were to assist the Dublin committee by every constitutional effort in this work. Walsh was most successful, and organized 160 branches of the land league. Walsh says he was arrested at the Hotel d' Albion at Havre on Feb. 28. He was detained nineteen days, and twice arraigned before the procureur, but was finally discharged. Walsh intended to leave Franco in a few days when arrested.

In the French prisons he was treated tolerably well, was allowed to provide his own food, but had to associate with the ordinary prisoners. Several rules were relaxed in his favor, such as those respecting nowspapers and manual labor. Mr. Walsh then went on to state that he left England to put himself out of the power of the "kying wretch" Carey, He would go back to England if he thought he would be tried by a fair jury, but that too many were hanged in Ireland nowadays unjustly, and he should expect to be made a victim though he was as guiltless as Gladstone himself of the charges Jury, but that too many were hanged in Ireland nowadays unjustly, and he should expect to be made a victim though he was as guiltless as Gladstone himself of the charges brought against him. He considered the conviction of those on trial a foregone conclusion. There was no such thing as law in Ireland to-day as dealt out by suborned judges and juries. The whole thing was a travesty and simply terrorism. Walsh then gave a long account of how he was inveigled into an acquaintance with Detective Murphy, but that being innocent of any crime, no admission could be got out of him. He stated that he had no recollection of ever seeing Carey. The charges against him were baseless. He regarded Carey as the most unbiashing perjurer on the English list of hired spies. An endeavor was made to decoy Walsh on board of an English vessel lying in the harbor on the pretense of important letters awaiting his personal application for them, but it failed. Respecting the outlook for Ireland, he thought if Ireland could get the right of making her own laws and administering them, or if she got her can parliament for the asking, there would be no revolution, but that Irishmen should stop at nothing in order to achieve Irish independence. He thought, however, that England would grant no concession for the asking, and he believed in a vigorous policy. Speaking of the English workingmen, he considered they were one in idea with their Irish brethrem—that there were no antipathies between the workers of the two nations, only those of the ruling charlatans of both countries.

At the British Legation.

Responding to an invitation by Minister West, the Royal English Bell Ringers, accompanied by Mr. Walter Pelham, gave an enter- fever. tainment last evening (after their regular performance at Lincoln hall) at the British legation. A dinner having been given by the British representative to the whole of the corps diplomatique now in Washington, the party by invitation, increased to about fifty, adjourned to the ball room, where for two hours they were regaled by the Ringers, and the humors of Mr. Pelham. Many congratulations on the success of the affair were passed, and the assurance of the enjoyment of all present. The impersonation of Artennus Ward by Mr. Pelham at Lincoln hall was a great hit, and will be repeated to-night and at the final entertainments of the Bell Ringers to-morrow.

A New York Dentist in Trouble. William B. Parker, a man claiming to be a New York dentist, was arrested yesterday evening by Officers Mattingly and Burgess for obtaining money under false profenses from Judge J. J. Noah. Parker says that a friend of his, Ferdinand A. Whittie, made a draft in favor of W. B. Parker, drawn on himself, and that Judge Noah signed the draft, which was for $50 and the money paid to Parker. Parker tells a very complicated story, but it is supposed that he forged the draft. He was locked up at police head-ounters.

The South Carolina Cases. Hon, Benjamin Butterworth will go at once to South Carolina to take charge of the election cases which he has been employed by the attorney general to prosecute. The vacancy caused by the resignation of Hon. Richard Crowley had to be filled without delay, as the cases are to be called on Monday. Mr. Butterworth has the great advantage over most attorneys of familiarity with election cases and election frauds acquired in congress. This, added to his ability as a lawyer, makes him as fit a man as there is in the country for the work.

The Commission in its Rooms and Ready for Work as Soon as the Rules Can be Approved and Adopted.

The civil service commission is established in its rooms in the annex of the agricultural building. These quarters are not regarded as necessarily permanent, though they answer all present requirements, and will be occupied until the government furnishes something better. The examinations will not begin for about thirty days.

Mr. Euton said in conversation last night that there were a number of applications Walsh states in an interview to-night that he already in, though no notice has been given of readiness to examine. In fact the rules have not yet been submitted to the President for his approval, nor have any of the details been his approval, nor have any of the details been fixed.

The question of public examinations was brought up in the conversation, and mention was made of the opposition that was felt in some quarters of public sessions. Mr. Eaton said that of course the examinations would be public to the extent of keeping records of all. So much is required by law. As to opening the doors to everybody, he was not so sure that it would be the fair thing. He thought that a candidate for a public place would, on general principles, be better adapted to the public service if he could answer questions when the public was about him; to be confused and disconcerted by the presence of people would in itself be an evidence of a lack that might interfere with perfect adaptability, though it is true that some very good men are confounded by having people around when questioned. He certainly would favor the opening of the sessions to representatives of the press and to others, so long as it did not become a resort for curiosity seekers.

The papers of each candidate examined will be kept so that any who have ever been examined can be referred to at any time. Mr. Eaton said that the 97,090 candidates examined by the commission in Eurland had been examined can be referred to at any time.

Mr. Eaton said that the 97,000 candidates examined by the commission in Eugland had each a record, which was kept for reference, and he considered this record as a valuable part of the work. The room is large enough to examine sixty applicants at one time.

The answers will all be in writing, and the marking will probably be done by experts from the departments assigned to the duty, with every precaution necessary to inperts from the departments assigned to the duty, with every precaution necessary to insure fairness, even to the extent of the reconsideration of cases where there should be any complaint of unfairness. Mr. Eaton was careful to state that these matters of detail are yet to be settled, and in the conversation, from which this civil service gossip is gathered, he was not talking for publication.
